Pastor Charges Plot to Railroad Heiress

SUITOR TURNS AGAINST 'FLAPPER SLAYER'; FACE DEATH TRIAL APRIL 11

New York, March 24 (I.N.S.).—Mrs. Ruth Snyder and Henry Judd Gray will go on trial April 11 for the murder of Albert Snyder, art editor of "Motor Boating," slain in his Queens Village home Sunday morning.

After Justice Callaghan had set the date, counsel for the couple asked for separate trials, but the court ruled that this must be decided by the trial judge later.

This request by attorneys for both defendants was taken by authorities as an indication that Gray and Mrs. Snyder will turn on each other in their efforts to escape the electric chair. District Attorney Newcombe announced that he would fight all efforts for separate trials.

Commissioner of Jurors William Haselwood announced that he would seek permission to summon a special "blue ribbon" panel for the trial, which will open just three weeks from the time Snyder was beaten over the head with a sash-

Stringent demands for protection of foreign lives at Nanking were served on Chinese officials today at a conference with American and British representatives aboard the British cruiser Emerald.

The demands are, first, immediate protection of all foreigners and foreign property; second, that the Cantonese general in command report aboard the Emerald before 11 p.m. tonight to negotiate respect; outrages committed by his troops, and, third, that all formers must be delivered on the bund under escort by tomorrow morning.

Rev. Dr. A. Z. Conrad, pastor of the Park Street Congregational Church, today became one of the central figures in the case of Elsie M. P. Morrell, Belmont's gun-toting heiress who was committed to the McLean Hospital as insane.

Dr. Conrad, appearing in Cambridge district court, charged attempts were being made to railroad the heiress into oblivion. He also declared Miss Morrell, in his judgment, was perfectly rational and sane.

The court, after hearing testimony today, refused the request for a permanent commitment to the insane hospital asked by her attorney. Judge Walcott had before him two petitions presented by

SO FAR, so good; all very friendly.

But a day may come when some country will have airplanes, dirigibles and submarines that carry airplanes below the water, all capable of crossing the ocean, and send them to the United States WITHOUT ANY INVITATION.

It would be as well to be ready for that possibility.

Jail Cell and Death Charge ~ Erase Smiles From 'Tommy' Snyder's ~ Jolly, Life-Loving Face

WAN, HAGGARD FEATURES
This is the Mrs. Ruth Snyder, as court saw her, when she and Henry Judd Gray were arraigned, charged with brutal slaying of Albert Snyder, her art editor husband.

IN THE DAYS OF SMILES
Before the menace of the electric chair engulfed her, "Tommy" Snyder was the feted young matron of her little set. She craved excitement and found it in intrigue.

REALLY A BEAUTIFUL WOMAN
Life-loving "Tommy" Snyder, governed by her impulses, today stands in imminent danger of an ignoble death in the electric chair, the State of New York officials assert.

BEFORE THE TRAGEDY
"Tommy" Snyder, as the indiscreet wife of the art editor. Her features show she is of the neurotic type, impulsive, pleasure seeking, excitable and quite selfish.

weight and strangled with a picture wire twisted tightly about his neck.

Carries Gray's Gift

If Hazelwood is allowed to summon a special panel of 200 he will weed out all those of inferior intelligence and those having scruples against capital punishment, thus expediting the selection of the trial jury.

Mrs. Snyder and Gray stood side by side in court during the proceedings today, but neither noticed the other.

The widow was pale and trembling, while Gray appeared even more nervous and haggard.

Mrs. Snyder continued to wear her wedding ring, and in her left hand carried a little bag, which she said was the only present Gray ever gave her.

Coincident with the setting of date for trial, relatives of the dead man today launched a fight to obtain custody of the Snyders 2-year-old daughter Lorraine. Until she is convicted, however, attorneys said Mrs. Snyder will remain the legal guardian of the child, whom she repeatedly asks to see as she sits in her cell.

Indications that there would be a fight for Lorraine, who probably will inherit her father's estate, was seen yesterday at Snyder's funeral, when friction was noticeable between members of the Snyder family and Mrs. Josephine Brown, Mrs. Snyder's mother.

No longer the jaunty, gaily laughing blonde belle of her set, Mrs. "Tommy" Snyder, the "flapper wife," early today collapsed in her cell, and the corridors of the Queens county jail rang with her piercing shrieks as she gave vent to her emotions.

"Aw, shut your gab. You're no better than us, you——murderess."

Such is the rejoinder to the accused widow's cries from the other women. Scant sympathy is shown by her jail-mates as they toss on their hard pallets. But the trapped widow, she who believed that the "perfect alibi" would enable her to collect insurance money and elope to Europe with Gray, who police charge is her partner in crime, is oblivious to that.

LACKS SYMPATHY

There is practically no sympathy for "Tommy," the woman who, Delilah-like, betrayed her husband, stripping him of his strength with liquor and subterfuge, and then aiding, police charge, in his murder.

Henry Gray's lot is little better. Being of the male sex, he is endowed with a little more stamina, despite his silent turn and his sunk-

'Just the Same Old Love Story,' Says Mrs. Snyder

By MARGERY REX

New York, March 24.—Despite her insistence on the falsity of Henry Judd Gray's story that she helped him murder her husband, Mrs. Ruth Brown Snyder today harbors no rancor for the man with whom she found escape from domestic stodginess.

Eddying giddily about in a maelstrom of emotions, Mrs. Snyder's mind is soothed by its focus on the moments of romance which she stole with Gray, after "love completely vanished" from her union with Snyder.

"Maybe some women will understand what drove me to his arms," she mused, as her eyes dropped to a blue leather handbag, her only gift from her lover.

BELIEVED "IT WAS LOVE"

A light blaze in her eyes and the drab walls of the county detectives'-room seemed to disappear for a precious moment as she recalled:

"He took me to interesting places, and our friendship developed into what we believed was love. There is nothing very unusual in my relationship with Mr. Gray. It was the old story of a woman and man falling in love, in an effort to get the most happiness out of life that they could possibly seize."

The moment was over. The spark vanished.

In a dreary, matter-of-fact manner that emphasized her grief and nearness to nervous exhaustion, Ruth Snyder recounted the events that led to her intrigue with Gray, a married man and father of a daughter about Lorraine Snyder's age, up to the murder of her husband, Albert. She began:

"I didn't have much education.

"Public school, then instead of going to high school I decided on business school up on the West Side near 125th street. I was born in that neighborhood.

"I went to work at sixteen.

"I had lots of different jobs but wasn't much interested in a business career," sighing.

"I wanted to get married and always looked forward to my wedding day.

"Albert Snyder was my first real love affair. I had had about the usual run of boy and girl friends, not many.

"We both were working for Rustling Wood, the lithographers. After I went with him six months we got married on July 24, 1916.

"He had lots of money and showed me a good time.

"I fell for it.

BABY MADE THEM HAPPY.

"Not till two and a half years after our marriage was Lorraine born.

"That made us happy for a while.

"It has been said that I didn't want a child. And that after she was born that I became cold and disagreeable to my husband. That is nonsense.

"I even went to Bayview Sanitarium and had an operation so that I could have a child.

"We had no other children.

"And Lorraine had nothing to do with any quarrels, anyway."

At this point the question was put to Mrs. Snyder of whether or not she might have married Snyder for his money.

"My God!" shrilly. "Where do you get that stuff?"

"There was nothing but love in our marriage—I had no affinities—but I was only a child when I married him.

"After Lorraine was born Albert and I began to drift apart.

"He went yachting and fishing every week end.

SHE LIKED DANCING.

"I could go on short trips but didn't care for the longer ones.

"I liked dancing, bridge, shows, and social affairs—the kind of things women like. I wasn't wild. I'm not that type at all," she said impatiently, as if it was going to be impossible to make strangers understand.

"I never took more than a mouthful of liquor in my life and then only to be a good sport and for no other reason. I'd take a glass of liquor and not drink it. Just leave it behind me on a table. That's how much I cared for drinking.

"Well, after my father died six and a half years ago, my mother came to live with Albert and me. He had no objection to her presence in our home but he never contributed anything to her support.

"Then two years ago I met Gray.

"A friend introduced us. I don't care to give that person's name. We went together nine or ten months before we became intimate. I wouldn't have allowed that if my husband hadn't eliminated love from our household.

"My husband didn't know what was going on with Gray. Because I knew Gray was unhappy in his own life I didn't hesitate about going with him. He must have had quarrels with his wife like most married couples. I had no one besides Gray in my life."

Directly upon her reminiscences of the love affair with Judd Gray, Ruth Snyder burst out with her wish to see Lorraine, the child now so important to her and so unimportant when the mother was busy cultivating a love affair.

"I don't know what's going to happen to her," I want to see her. She's all that held Albert and myself together after he eliminated love from our home.

"I am sorry, so terribly sorry about all this."

Now the lowered eyelids.

Was the lowering of her glance a careful, conscious gesture her interviewers asked one another afterwards. It did look that way.

"Is the confession you made, now in the possession of the district attorney, true?" the accused woman was asked.

Fire burned behind her sallow cheeks again. Her eyes opened wide. As green as the smart felt hat she had put on for the trip from jail to the courthouse to meet the reporters.

"I did not have anything to do with the killing of my husband. The confession was forced out of me. They were brutal and worked at me, worked me to death."

Snyder Girl 'Crucified on Cross of Passion'

CRUSHED BY MOTHER'S FOLLY

HERE'S THE INNOCENT VICTIM

Little Lorraine Snyder, with head bowed in grief, made a tragic picture at the funeral of her slain father. She is accompanied by her aunt, Mabel Snyder, who tries in vain to comfort her. (I.N.R.)

LITTLE CHILD A 'LIVING SACRIFICE' IN CRIME

By CONSTANCE EMERY.

Albert Snyder, victim of New York's latest love tragedy, lies with peaceful, folded hands, at rest, his earthly troubles ended. His wife sits behind prison bars, her ill-laid plans for a successful murder gone much awry.

But what of Lorraine Snyder, their nine-year-old daughter? Is she not the real victim of this tragedy? Her baby feet are but on the first rung of the ladder of a life forever to be shadowed by her mother's crime.

Her nine short years in this world have held little of childhood's joys. Seated on her precious pony, her beloved doll clasped in her arms, her smile holds more than a hint of pathos, of wistfulness. Now even these half smiles are arrested by the grim hand of tragedy—her mother's hand.

Though there was no want in her home, Lorraine's little body is thin, almost under-nourished—the reflection of the troubled spirit within. For what child can grow up in a loveless home—worse, in a home reeking with amours and intrigues, without carrying the mental and physical stamp of cares beyond her years?

WHAT WERE HER THOUGHTS?

What must have been Lorraine's thoughts as she lay in her little bed listening to her daddy upbraiding her mother for her all-night carousals? What the effect of the shock of finding that mother bound, the home ransacked, her father beaten and garrotted to death?

How the little voice must have faltered as she carried out her mother's orders to telephone the neighbors. What terror must have clutched the baby heart at the fast following visits of the police, the arrest of her mother, the questionings, the mysteries? What the influence on baby standards?

Her little body may be only 9 years old, but Lorraine's mind is infinitely older, aged by the premature knowledge of illicit love and its consequences.

Lorraine may have been well cared for physically, but her soul has been starved—starved for the wholesome surroundings of a normal home, for the normal, happy times of a normal, happy couple blessed with such a winsome little daughter. Starved most of all for the love a real mother. For this counterfeit mother of many loves was but a poor imitation of the precious being, little lower than the angels, enshrined in most memories under the sacred name of "Mother."

FACES WIFE OF SORROWS

What real mother, however real her grievances, however unhappy her own lot, could have cold-bloodedly plotted the killing of him—her husband—whose love for her had called this little daughter into life?

Centuries ago the Phoenicians offered children as living sacrifices to the consuming flames of Moloch, god of fire. Today a modern mother sacrifices her frail, blonde little nine-year-old daughter to the fires of her unholy passions. Surely Moloch's iron body held no harder heart than this inhuman mother's, nor were the flames he belched less hot than the fires of this mother's lust—a lust that stopped at no sacrifice, neither at the life of her husband nor the life's happiness of little Lorraine, flesh of her flesh, bone of her bone.

In the days to come, to what depths of misery must these baby feet descend? No power on earth can keep from her the grim facts of the tragedy, the cold-blooded murder, the shameful cause, a father dead, a mother worse than dead, the cruel whisperings of neighbors, the stark terror of the inevitable court proceedings.

No matter where the lines of Lorraine's life may lie, there rumor will steal. Ostracized by children forbidden to associate with the daughter of a murderess, an outcast through no fault of her own, a frail little flower blighted in the bud.

Lorraine Snyder, pitiful little sacrifice, dragged up to the Golgotha of a woman's frivolity and crucified on the cross of a flapper mother's wicked passion.

2 STORES BURN IN DORCHESTER

Fire which started in the basement of the three-story business and tenement block at Nos. 246-248 and 248A Bowdoin street, Dorchester, today drove two families to the street, destroyed two stores and for a time threatened adjoining tenements.

The building in which the fire broke out is a thickly congested neighborhood and a second alarm was sounded as soon as fire apparatus arrived. Firemen were forced to play streams on adjoining buildings to prevent the flames spreading.

The first floor of the building is occupied by a CoOperative store and the bakery of Mrs. Katherine Richards. The second floor apartment is occupied by the family of Edward Tiernan and the third floor by the family of John Bonner.

The fire, laid to defective wiring, was discovered by Edward Murphy, a baker. He gave the alarm, but by the time tenants on the second and third floors were notified the flames had burned up the rear to the roof and escape there was cut off.

The tenants made their way to the street through the front halls which were filled with smoke.

At No. 125 Hamilton street is a three-story tenement, filled with women and children. The fire threatened this structure and streams were played on it for half an hour.

The rear of the building, from basement to roof was burned out while the front was damaged by smoke and water, firemen forcing entrances through front windows. Damage was estimated at $5,000.

Othello — Desdemona Smothered — Shakespeare's Drama of Jealousy

"To make me the fixed figure for the time of scorn
To point his slow and moving finger at!"

Unjustly accused by her husband of infidelity, Desdemona, crushed and bewildered, swears that she had never thought of any man but Othello. The Moor, enraged by the treacherous lies of Iago, would not listen to her protestations.

"His unkindness may defeat my life,
But never taint my love."

Desdemona, having a premonition of death, prepared for the end in a resigned spirit. The cunning Iago, whose wife, Emilia, was Desdemona's lady-in-waiting, assured Desdemona that Othello was only upset over affairs of state.

"When I have pluck'd the rose,
I cannot give it vital growth again."

Othello, entering Desdemona's bedroom for the purpose of killing her, was so overcome by her beauty and his love for her that he was almost persuaded from his cruel purpose. He kissed her, and she awakened to his caresses.

"For thou hast killed the sweetest innocent
That e'er did lift up eye."

Othello warned Desdemona that he had come to kill her, and urged her to pray for the last time. Then he smothered her with a pillow. Emilia, rushing in with the news that Cassio was wounded, found a blacker tragedy.

against the steps of a trolley car in the Waltham yards after John J. Devereaux was alleged to have shot and club him in the process of the holdup.

Patrolman Bevins testified that, after receiving the red signal warning and communicating with headquarters on the morning of October 4, 1925, he raced to the carbarn, arriving there at 1:45 and finding Ferneau. The policeman was questioned by District Attorney Bushnell.

Q.—Was he alive? A.—Yes.

Q.—Was he conscious? A.—No.

NOTICED BLOOD.

Q.—Did you notice any blood? A.—Considerable.

Q.—Did you go with Ferneau to the hospital? A.—Yes.

Q.—Were you there when he died? A.—Yes, at 2:45. We put him on a table and finally had to strap him down. I helped to take his clothes off.

As the policeman was leaving the stand Judge Hugo Dubuque called him back and asked:

"Did he speak before he died?"

"He kept saying, 'Budwell, Budwell!' I asked him if his name was Budwell. The third time I asked him that he didn't answer, because he was pretty far gone."

Q.—Did you ask him who shot him? I did, but he didn't answer.

NURSE TESTIFIES.

A strikingly pretty nurse, Miss Eileen Evans of Chelsea, took the stand next and in answer to questions by Assistant District Attorney Robert White, said that she helped undress Ferneau and saw a bullet wound in his leg and wounds on his head.

She was followed by Dr. Harold C. Gallonpe, who examined Ferneau at the Waltham Hospital. The surgeon said the bullet in the watch man's leg had passed above the knee, had penetrated the bone and had severed an artery, which in itself was sufficient to cause death by hemorrhage.

Again today in the trial a witness failed to identify McLaughlin as one of the men engaged in the holdup, although, according to the State's claim, McLaughlin was one of the three men in the witness' presence during the robbery.

The witness was William J. Mains, acting cashier at the carbarn, and he resumed the stand for cross-examination after it was learned that McLaughlin's estranged wife, Mrs. Blanche McLaughlin, would be one of the thirty witnesses against him.

REVOLVER FOUND.

State Detective Michael H. Fleming told of the raids executed in the early morning hours of October 7, three days after the hold-up and murder. He testified that in a basket, under some newspapers, in John J. Devereaux's room, he found seven or eight rolls of coins in original wrappers of the Middlesex & Boston Street Railway Company.

Then the squad went to the home of Joan J. McLaughlin, brother of Peter, and found, according to Fleming, a gun holster and a number of 38-calibre bullets.

Patrolman Joseph T. Maguire of the Brighton station testified that they went to the home of Heinlein, where a loaded 32-calibre Colt revolver was found in a dresser drawer, also $10 in bills and an army ammunition belt.

the hearing on the new petition for today.

Mrs. Chaplin's attorneys have indicated they would suggest $2,000 a month as a proper allowance for their client in view of the comedian's reputed wealth. They also base their estimate on the original alimony award of $1,000 a month made to Mrs. Chaplin shortly after she filed her divorce complaint, but all efforts to collect the amount failed.

The original alimony order was invalidated by an Appellate Court ruling on the ground that Chaplin, who is now in New York, had not been properly served in the case. Mrs. Chaplin's counsel pointed out, however, that service on the comedian by publication became effective last week, making a new alimony award legally possible.

PRINCE RIDES IN TWO RACES WITHOUT FALL

Barrowby, Lincolnshire, Eng., March 24 (A.P.)—Despite his experience of Tuesday in being thrown during the Army steeplechase at Holdenby, the Prince of Wales rode in two point-to-point races this afternoon. He finished second in one and fourth in the other.

The Prince was limping and leaning heavily on his stick when he appeared for the races, but laughingly declared this had nothing to do with Tuesday's Fall. He rode well.

LIGHT SNOW FALLS HERE AS COLD SPELL STAYS

A light snow which started falling in the middle of the afternoon today fulfilled the weatherman's earlier prediction of light snow in the afternoon or night. The predicted warm wave swept southward last night and Boston will have another night of below freezing temperature, the forecaster said. Tomorrow will be fair, with little change in temperature.

LOVE SLAYERS PART IN FIGHT TO BEAT CHAIR

on chest. He sat on his bunk in the Queens County Jail and alternately wringing his hands and clasping them to his head, sought the solace that would not come.

Gray, slowly breaking under the strain, admitted twice in the presence of witnesses that he aided in the brutal slaying of Snyder.

Once was late in the afternoon when he laid his head on the shoulder of his aged mother and sobbed:

"Mother, mother, I can't lie to you. I can't lie. I'm guilty."

The second admission of guilt was made to his friend, Haddon Gray, of Syracuse, the man who innocently aided him in establishing the "perfect alibi."

Haddon Gray, brought to New York to testify before the Grand Jury, refused to testify until he had "the truth from Judd's own lips."

The District Attorney took him to Gray's cell.

"Tell me the truth, Judd. Tell me you didn't commit this awful crime," he demanded with a note of anxiety and hope in his voice.

And Henry Judd Gray replied:

"I'm guilty, Haddon. I lied to you, old man. I'm sorry I got you into this terrible mess."

"Mrs. Snyder will be declared not guilty, of that there is not a doubt," former Judge Edgar Hazleton, her attorney, said. He refused to say on what he based his belief, though he denied that it was because his client is "a beautiful woman."

TEN HURT ON WILD TROLLEY

Bora, forty-five, No. 114 Belmont street.

The six less seriously injured were: Miss Maggie Hatchett, 36, No. 40 Eliot street; John Romala, 35, No. 196 Eastern avenue; Miss Frances O'Malley, 22, No. 41 Oak avenue; Mrs. Lena Williams, 58, No. 8 Liberty street; Mrs. Timothy Moynihan 48, No. 47 Eastern avenue, and David Eisenberg, 46, No. 40 Oak avenue.

These six were felled as the racing trolley spun on the sharp curves in turning from one street into another.

Philip Bargnesi, 22, of No. 7 Campana terrace, saw the runaway car with the front door open and the motorman up on the roof, holding down the trolley pole so that it would not hit the wire. He dove through the open door and set the hand brake, bringing the trolley to a stop.

The trolley rope broke in Clayton street and Motorman Joseph Highland, after setting his brake, got up on the roof. The brake came off and the car rolled down the hill.

Cheer Hub Man As He Sails to Bring Back His Bride

Cheered by nearly fifty friends, John Pietrosanta of Columbia road, Dorchester, today sailed from Commonwealth Pier on the Italian liner Giuseppe Verdi, to reclaim his bride of five years ago at Genoa.

John, though born an American citizen, returned to the land of his parents five years ago for his wedding and returned to the Hub and his steward duties at a local hotel.

Wedded life via mail lost its zest in the half-decade that passed, resulting in the trip started today.

The liner sailed with fifty passengers from this port. Among Bostonians were Ernest Piscopo, Anthony Dachi, Josephine Reale, Ernest Bensay and Ella Sardella.

MRS. SNYDER'S LOVE FOR GRAY TURNS TO HATE

New York, March 24 (A.P.).—The love of Mrs. Ruth Snyder for Henry Judd Gray, "has turned to hate," she told newspapermen today after her arraignment with him on first degree murder charges.

There were two reasons for this, she said.

"One is the barbarous method he used to kill my husband," she declared. "The other is the fact that he entangled me in his story of the actual killing.

"I had nothing to do with the actual slaying of my husband. Gray did that."

She continued to pity herself as has been her attitude from the start since the crime was discovered.

Mrs. Snyder, limp and obviously in a weakened condition, was examined by doctors after the arraignment. When her condition was found not to be immediately serious, she consented to talk for a few moments with newspapermen.

"My daughter, Lorraine," she said, "does not know I am a prisoner, accused of murder. I am going to see her tomorrow, when I will tell her I am going to a hospital, because I am sick. I will tell her I will be home some day."

The woman's eyes welled with tears when she spoke of the child.

No trace of emotion had moved her when she spoke of Gray or Snyder.

She was heartened somewhat by a statement of District Attorney Newcombe that he would "keep the child out of the case."

He said he would have no need of the daughter as a witness and desired to keep her as far away from the trial as possible, "for the child's own sake."

PASTOR BECKWITH FINED $125 IN CASE OF GIRL, 14

Rev. Samuel Milton Beckwith, formerly known as "New England's Little Minister," was today found guilty in South Bend, Ind., of contributing to the delinquency of a 14-year-old girl and fined $125. He was accused of making improper remarks and discussing sex matters with the girl, Evelyn Thomas. The jury was out 15 hours and took 58 ballots before reaching their verdict.

HEIRESS AIDED BY DR. CONRAD IN COURT FIGHT

Miss Morrell's attorney, Charles M Rogerson, one asking for an order permanently confining Miss Morrell to the McLean hospital, the other that the attorney himself be appointed her guardian with control over her fortune. No action was taken on second petition.

Opposing the two petitions was the girl's mother, Mrs. Anne Parsons and her lawyer, F. Paul Welsch. A brother of Miss Morrell's, George Parsons of Portland, was also in court.

The mother sought to have her daughter released and to be appointed guardian.

Attorney Welsch charged in court that the girl's counsel had acted in bad faith, by going through with the commitment proceedings without notifying the girl's family or herself, as he had agreed.

DR. CONRAD ON STAND.

Rev. Dr. Conrad, taking the stand, said:

"It appears to me, Your Honor, that attempts are being made to railroad this girl to an institution."

"Miss Morrell and her mother are members of my church and I visited Miss Morrell yesterday at the McLean Hospital. I found her normal, except for the excitement under which she was laboring, due to her present confinement.

"I believe an opportunity should be given to her family to provide adequate means to protect her health and her fortune. She attends my church regularly and is very energetic. In my opinion there is nothing wrong with her that cannot be corrected."

Dr. Charles E. Dewey and Dr. W. H. Prescott who signed the papers for the temporary commitment, testified it would be a comparatively short time before Miss Morrell's condition was normal again. Dr. Dewey said it was a matter of a few months, Dr. Prescott said of weeks.

GIRL NOT VIOLENT.

The doctors testified the girl was suffering from maniac depressive insanity of the energetic phase and that she was not violent in any way.

The mother's attorney said Miss Morrell, feeling a spell of depression coming on her, gave the keys to her safety deposit box to her mother, with positive instructions that the mother was to keep the keys. Later the girl went to the bank and had the box forcibly opened.

Attorney Rogerson said he knew little about the procedure in such cases, but when the psychopathic doctors told him the patient would do better at the private institution he had a five-day emergency commitment signed.

Judge Walcott said he would sign a 35-day commitment for the girl and during this period the family could decide on a future plan of action.

MAYOR HEADS FIGHT ON PIER DOCKAGE FEE

Mayor Nichols, the Chamber of Commerce and prominent Boston business concerns today denounced the plan of the State to assess a dockage charge on vessels using Commonwealth Pier.

The Chamber of Commerce will make a fight before the Interstate Commerce Commission next week against another plan of the State and the Boston & Maine Railroad to collect dockage and wharfage charges at the new $2,000,000 Wiggin Terminal docks in Charlestown.

Representatives of the Chamber and other organizations appeared before the State department of public works today to protest the Commonwealth Pier charges, which were proposed by Commissioner William F. Williams.

These charges, if put in effect, will force steamship companies to pay 2 cents a day on each ton of their net tonnage.

Mayor Nichols instructed Corporation Counsel Deland to contest the charges. He said:

"The steamship lines claim this dockage charge will force to other ports many of the steamers now serving Boston. Certain leading business declare that it will force their traffic thruout New York and other ports competitive with Boston.

"Shipping leaves behind hundreds of thousands of dollars a year in Boston, most of which goes to labor. If steamers and their cargoes are driven away from this port labor will be one of the chief sufferers."

The Chamber of Commerce takes the stand that the proposed charges place the Hub at a disadvantage in competition with other North Atlantic ports. As the entire question of wharfage charges is to be aired at the Interstate Commerce Commission hearing, at which many Boston shippers will appear, the State should postpone its plan until it learns from the commission's findings the true state of affairs along the coast, representatives of the chamber declare.

TONG MENACES LIFE OF LYNN CHINAMAN

The scrawny, sinister shadow of death's hand laid a blot over Lynn today in a sudden descent of Tong hostilities that have marred the casualties in many Chinatowns throughout the nation.

Casualties reported were Brooklyn, two dead, two shot; Newark, one dead; Chicago, one dead; Manchester, Ct., two dead; Cleveland, one shot; Pittsburgh, one shot.

Over the telephone from Boston to Lynn, a message of death was sent to Woon Tee Hoon, he reported to the police and then proceeded to spread the alarm among Lynn Chinese.

"Death, for you, it is written, lies not among the corners," was the message he received from a mysterious sender who apparently knew well Hoon's laundry on Broad and Silsbee streets and of his wife and three small children in Lynn.

Hoon, a member of the On Leong Tong of the Native Sons of the Golden Gate of San Francisco, was quite alarmed by the message, specifically as the Tong war, bloody and relentless, is blazing in Boston and the fear that new battles will open in Boston at any moment has been felt.

RUM CASE CHIEF BASES HOPE ON LIMITATIONS

White River Junction, Vt., March 24.—Claiming the statute of limitations has outlawed every charge against Chief of Police Charles W. Smith, on trial for possessing and giving away seized liquor, the defense demanded a directed verdict of not guilty today as the State rested.

After a long conference, the trial went on with the defense beginning an effort chiefly to prove that the two most serious charges against Chief Smith happened more than three years ago, if at all, and were therefore outlawed.

Witnesses today accused the police chief of failing to place a liquor charge against an arrested motorist but the defense scored heavily when the State failed to prove disposition of the seized liquor or to trace it into the chief's possession, leaving it, as far as witnesses could say, on his desk in a room in which many constables had access.

Patrolman E. W. Mosse told of arresting the autoist, seizing a bottle of liquor and leaving it on Chief Smith's desk.

CHIEF "TEETOTALER."

"Does the chief drink?" he was asked and as every one of the scores of spectators jammed into the courtroom leaned forward to hear his reply the policeman retorted:

"He's a teetotaler as far as I know."

Defence counsel brought out that several constables and even "any of the public" had access to the room.

"Do the constables drink?" the witness was asked.

"I believe they do," replied Mosse as the crowd snickered, court officers rapping sharply for order.

Judge Arthur G. Wilson, presiding officer of the Municipal Court here, took the stand as the next witness and testified that when the alleged liquor

Chelsea Mayor to Gag Firemen With New "Bable Tower"

Chelsea firemen, according to Mayor John J. Whalen, have too much time to sit about discussing politics, so today he ordered a five-story drill tower constructed in the rear of Central Fire Station.

"When this tower is completed, every man in the department will have to spend two hours a day drilling," said the Mayor. "My investigation shows too many politicians in the department. The boys will have to learn to handle hose, scale buildings and become efficient in other branches of their work."

The tower will be completed in six weeks and a celebration will take lace when it is dedicated.

at her post despite the smoke, warned all other occupants as the fire started on a sweep of two floors.

All escaped without injury, but scarcely any of the fleeing tenants paused long enough to seize their clothing, and all shivered in the chill morning in negligee.

The janitor, Joseph Morise, husband of the heroine telephone operator, traced the smoke to an apartment on the fourth floor occupied as an office by Dr. Buckman and Dr. Archibald Sise, and unfastened during the night.

He found curtains and draperies ablaze, and after calling his wife he tried to extinguish the flames with a fire extinguisher. But it was beyond his control and crept through the ceiling to the fifth floor, where it attacked the apartment occupied by Philip Kimball, and also that tenanted by Miss Bertha Woodrow.

A passerby saw the smoke pouring through the window, and sent in an alarm. The firemen quickly extinguished the blaze, but not until it had wrought damage estimated at $12,000.

All Branches of War Force Used Against Chinese Pirates

Hong Kong, March 24 (A.P.)—Most of the paraphernalia of modern warfare were employed by the British punitive expedition, which yesterday laid waste the Chinese villages around Bias Bay, headquarters of one of the world's worst pirate gangs.

While airplanes reconnoitered from the air, landing parties raided two groups of villages in the vicinity of Bias Bay, destroying about a hundred houses by fire and explosives. They likewise burned and scuttled a number of junks and sampans which the pirates used to take loot from captured ships.

CANDY HER CURE TO KILL OUT THE DOPE

How a girl addict was saved from the habit by nibbling chocolate, on advice of a Boston judge, was told today by Judge John Duff of Municipal Court, who gave this surprising hint.

Judge Duff also told of saving others by the same advice. He placed George W. Rice of St. Botolph street, admitted opium smoker, on probation after Rice said he was convinced he could beat the habit.

"I have stayed away from the stuff for a week since my arrest by Special Officers Madden and Manahan," said Rice. The judge replied:

"It is a good practice for a drug user to have a cake of chocolate handy to nibble every time they feel a desire for narcotics. I have known human skeletons, made so by the use of narcotics, who have followed my advice and completely cured the habit.

"One young lady in particular, after a period of six months on the chocolate diet, regained her normal condition and today is herself again

HOWELL IN BOSTON SHOPS

Two Tone Smartness

Very simple but alluring is this modish misses' evening gown. The two-tone effect is an engaging modification of the voguish black and white—a blending of the rugged character of black with the softness of rose pink.

It typifies forcefully the gracefulness of the circular skirt. The double waistline illustrates a mode notable this year.

An outstanding feature is the material—it is satin.

Howell Fashion Sketches depicting Modes of the Moment as found in Boston department stores and shops appear weekly in the Boston Evening American.

WOULD EXTEND TOLL BRIDGE DISTRICT

A greatly enlarged district for constructing, operating and maintaining the proposed $18,000,000 25-cent maximum toll bridge or tunnel from Boston proper to East Boston was advocated at a hearing today before the House Ways and Means Committee.

The bill before the committee called for a district comprised of Boston, Chelsea, Revere, Lynn and Winthrop. Mayor Ralph S. Bauer of Lynn and other speakers, questioned by Representative Martin Lomasney of the committee, agreed that Gloucester, Ipswich, Peabody, Salem, Beverly and several other communities, direct beneficiaries under the act, should be included.

In answer to one question from Lomasney as to whether he thought it fair to allow the smaller cities and towns to have the same voting strength on the governing board, Bauer declared he had no objection to Boston having the entire representation.

Henry L. Shattuck, chairman of the committee, called Bauer's attention to an estimate previously given by the mayor of 5,000,000 cars over the bridge by 1940. The chairman pointed out that the bridges operating expense, based on the estimate cost of $18,000,000, would need that amount of traffic at the start with a twenty-five cent toll.

WHEN YOU DON'T WANT TO EAT

Or What you Eat Hurts or Makes You Sick

Try a little diapepsin. It's powerful on the stomach—contains real digesters that lend a hand to do the work a strong and healthy stomach would do naturally. It digests such foods as fresh bread, pastry and rich cake. It enables you to eat away with sausage, baked beans or mince pie.

But no matter what you eat, even if you can't digest milk, or meat makes you bilious, or your stomach gets gassy, with heartburn or sour risings, diapepsin almost instantly rids of your stomach sweet, absorbs the gas, makes you feel comfortable and enables you to digest and empty the stomach on time and ready for the next meal.

Get a 60 cent package of Pape's Diapepsin at any drug store. It will surely bring you stomach comfort.

Women Rescued by U. S. Heroes in Shanghai

Shanghai, March 24 (U.N.S.)—Many deeds of heroism are being told today as the result of the evacuation of foreigners from the Chinese territory beyond "No Man's Land," during heavy fighting there between the northern troops and guerrillas.

The American Volunteer Corps, accompanied by two armed cars, marched to the boundaries of the Chinese quarters and under heavy fire covered a dash made by W. C. Farnham into the war area to rescue his wife and family.

At the same time T. J. Engstrom made a dash into the area of battle and brought out his wife. Farnham and Engstrom are employes of the Texas Oil Company.

6 More U. S. Warships Rushed to China

Department was advised, with the Cantonese representatives being warned that if the three demands were not complied with, Nanking would be treated as a military area.

This was interpreted at the Navy Department as meaning that the Americans and British had served an ultimatum and that they would take any emergency action required to assure the protection of their nationals in Nanking.

The legal opinion here is that while an unfortified city cannot be fired upon, it can be declared to be "a military area" because of the gravity of offenses committed in that way it can be given a status which permits it to be punished by gunfire, if necessary.

A dispatch, filed by Admiral Hough at 8 p. m. (Chinese time), today, said that at that time firing continued on both banks of the Yangtze river and that a large part of Pukow was in flames.

"These outrages occurred," the report said, "in spite of every possible effort on the part of the American consul and others to get in touch with some responsible Cantonese officer and insure the safety of foreigners."

AMERICANS STILL IN PERIL.

Admiral Hough said he was sending all available American refugees from Nanking to Shanghai tonight by the steamships Kung Gwo and Wenchow.

The fate of the 155 Americans left in Nanking was described in a supplemental dispatch from Admiral Hough as uncertain.

While the destroyers Noa and Preston, with the British cruiser Emerald, shelled an area in Nanking for protection of foreigners, landing forces brought off all the foreign nationals in the concentration area, including the American Consul, John K. Davis, his family, and all American naval personnel.

During the engagement one American sailor was slightly wounded, while the Noa and Preston were hit many times.

"Cantonese troops looted American, British and the Japanese consulates, wounded the British Consul-General and were reported to have killed the Japanese Consul. Missions in Nanking also were looted.

Three cruisers held at Honolulu for his orders, the Richmond, the Marblehead and the Cincinnati, were dispatched to Adm Admiral Williams' fleet at Shanghai today.

The destroyers Pillsbury, John D. Ford and Peary were dispatched from Manila to Shanghai.

WILLIAMS' MESSAGE.

Admiral Williams declared the foreigners concentrated on Socony Hill (a Standard Oil Company property) were attacked by Cantonese and defended by the British and the American ships.

The three shelled the area around the hill to protect the foreigners, opening fire about 3:30 p. m., after which the landing forces were sent to the scene.

Rear-Admiral H. H. Hough arrived at Nanking on the converted yacht Isabel, flagship of the Yangtze patrol fleet, at 6:50 P. M. His dispatch forwarded to the Navy Department by Admiral Williams, said:

"At 5 p. m. the Preston and the Noa ceased heavy gunfire and the British Cruiser Emerald sent a landing force to a wall under the Standard Oil house while the Emerald covered with shrapnel and the Noa and the Preston cleared the bund and the far shore of snipers by firing from the ships.

FOREIGNERS RESCUED.

"The landing forces successfully brought off all the foreigners from the Standard Oil house, including the American consul and his family and all American naval personnel. One American sailor was slightly wounded. The Noa and Preston were hit many times during the day.

"During the afternoon the Cantonese troops looted American, British and Japanese consulates, wounded the British consul-general and are reported to have killed the Japanese consul.

U. S. Consul Cables Red Cross to Aid Refugees

Shanghai, March 24 (A.P.)—The U. S. Consul-General here has cabled the American Red Cross suggesting relief measures to take care of the hundreds of American refugees who are expected to come here from Nanking. The addition of this number would create a serious strain on the resources of the international settlement here, which is already congested.

Missions and commercial firms are undertaking to care for their members or employes arriving from Nanking. The American Women's Club and the Y. M. C. A. are providing as far as possible for unattached men and women.

The British destroyer Wolsey is rushing to Nanking from Wuhu.

The British subject killed in the Cantonese shelling at Nanking was Dr. Satchwell Smith, whose wife reached Shanghai today a refugee. It is uncertain whether the British consul reported wounded was Consul B. Giles or Vice-Consul Tribe.

The motive of the Chinese attack has not been stated. An official wireless said the attack was made by "undisciplined Cantonese troops."

The city is full of irregulars who call themselves "members of the Revolutionary Army" and are active in stirring up trouble. Many northerners also have remained in the portion of Nanking nearest the Yangtse river.

57 U. S. Missionaries in Nanking Field

New York, March 24 (A.P.).—There were 32 Baptist and Presbyterian missionaries stationed in Nanking, it was revealed today by the foreign board of the two churches.

Many of the missionaries are members of the faculty of Nanking University, an interdenominational college.

The Presbyterian workers at the Nanking station of the Kiangan mission number 24. Among them are Samuel J. Mills of Wallingford, Ct., and Evelyn W. Walmsley and Mrs. Lawrence Thurston of Hartford, Ct.

Among the four workers of the American Baptist Foreign Mission Society at Nanking are Prof. C. S. Gibbs of Maine, Mrs. C. S. Gibbs of Massachusetts, and H. D. Lamson, Exeter, N. H.

Methodist missionaries at Nanking, all reported safe today, include the Rev. and Mrs. Lyman L. Hales of Roslindale, Mass.

PEARL JUBILEE

N. SALLINGER-INC.

PEOPLES CREDIT COMPANY

N. SALLINGER is the originator of the famous Order Check which opens the Big Department and other stores to the people who desire credit on the basis of $1.00 a week payments—With his order check you can now buy anything on credit at any kind of a cash store.

N. SALLINGER'S remarkable system offers by far the most liberal credit accommodations because you are not limited to 10 weeks to pay your account nor to any so-called budget plan of payment. The Sallinger system is admitted to be the fairest, easiest, friendliest credit service known—it is "Different from the Rest."

Customers Numbering Into —The Hundreds of Thousands

Business Extending Into —The Millions of Dollars

Success and Progress —Through Confidence and Service

Thirty years ago N. Sallinger started in the credit business with a broad and high conception of duty towards the credit buyer. He had vision, ideals—and as subsequent events have proven he had integrity of purpose and keen foresight, all of which have materialized in a record of achievement far beyond his greatest expectations.

Thirty years in the credit business, planning, organizing, building, improving—establishing a credit service for the people that is now eminently superior to any ever recorded in the history of the credit business. A notable achievement in the annals of Boston's big business houses.

His initial thought, his basic purpose was to open a line of credit on the department and other reliable cash stores for people who could afford to pay their bill only in small weekly payments—How he succeeded in helping this class of people with his now famous order check has since been written into Boston's business history.

The Sallinger organization with its hundreds of intelligent men and women is entitled to no small part of the credit for building up this wonderful business. The ability and courtesy of this staff has pleased and retained for this house the trade which is now exclusively its own.

During these thirty years he has contributed his best to the needs of the credit service, he has cultivated the confidence and respect of the people; he has maintained this confidence and respect by the practice of business methods which have assured to his clientele the greatest possible value and the fairest and most considerate treatment.

His methods have broken the bonds of prejudice and convention against credit buying—and now thousands of men and women are using his service who never before bought on credit.

No other single credit store operator has played quite the spectacular role of leadership or won the same phenomenal success as did the head and contributing spirit of this organization—N. Sallinger; who has in the past thirty years built up by far the greatest business of its kind not only in New England but also in the United States.

During our Pearl Jubilee we will offer special Inducements to our customers that they may participate in our 30th Anniversary Celebration with profit to themselves. Substantial price reductions in all our own departments also now in effect to celebrate this event. The public is cordially invited to call.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY

Many Bostonians of Prominence to Be Present at Grand National Steeplechase Over Aintree Course Tomorrow

ALTHOUGH THE GREATEST SPORTING EVENT OF THE year, bar one, takes place tomorrow more than three thousand miles from these shores, nevertheless Boston cosmopolites in goodly numbers will be in attendance. It is the historic old "Grand National" Steeplechase, run at Aintree on the 25th that draws the eyes of the entire sporting world, and draws devotees of racing sometimes half across the world to be there in person on the day of days. The celebration commences, in fact, on the "evening before," when society centers about the Midland-Adelphi Hotel to give fitting send-off to this big event.

GENERAL FRANCIS PEABODY OF "HIGHFIELD" IN MILTON IS a "regular" who treks without ado over two continents with the "Grand National" as his mecca. The Peabodys have been putting in their Winter in Northern Africa at Algiers, as usual, and also as usual have arrived in Liverpool in good season for the "Grand National." The dinner, with General Peabody as host at the Midland-Adelphi, the night before the race, is the gayest of affairs. The John Austin Amorys of Needham sailed a short while ago to join the Peabody celebration and to take in the "Grand National," and Mrs. Richard M. Saltonstall of Chestnut Hill sailed at the same time, together with Mr. and Mrs. William B. Rogers.

THE MYOPIA SET TAKING IN THE "GRAND NATIONAL" IS ably represented by the Augustus F. Goodwins of Hamilton, who went over early in the season expressly to put in a Winter with the hunting set about Melton Mowbray, and to help celebrate the big race day at Aintree. They, too, are guests at the Midland-Adelphi, which is full to overflowing, and is the very center of the horsey set today and tomorrow. In fact, reservations at Liverpool have been at a premium this many a day—so great is the world's interest.

AMERICANS WHO HAVE HORSES IN THIS CLASSIC ARE Harold Fowler, brother of Mrs. George Saltonstall West of Chestnut Hill, and Robert Gould Shaw. Mr. Fowler rides "Popahead," so he "telephoned" Mrs. West yesterday. His words came over by the modern miracle of invention, the trans-Atlantic telephone, as clearly as though he were talking from a nearby exchange. The vivacious Mrs. West found this talking across the ocean a most thrilling experience.

THE GOODWINS HAVE WITH THEM MISS BETTY BARRELL, Mrs. Goodwin's pretty sub-deb daughter. She sailed about two weeks ago and after Aintree goes over to Paris with her parents for a week of the shops before the trio turns homeward. The Peabodys, however, like to take in the Cambridge-Oxford boat race and so before they take ship to sail this way will witness that historic competition.

MISS NATALIE WINSLOW'S DINNER ON SATURDAY AT THE Club Argonaut promises to be one of the very smart though small functions of the late season. Miss Winslow, eldest of the trio of girls belonging in the Cameron McRae Winslow family's experiences a delightfully roving existance such as belongs to those blessed with wealth and leisure. To my mind Miss Winslow is one of the Inner Young Set's most decorative members—slender and purely blonde and wearing the smartest of clothes in the smartest way.

INTERESTING PEOPLE CONTINUE TO SAIL AWAY ON INTEResting Old World errands. The steamship Devonian, sailing yesterday from Boston, takes Dr. Sarah Ellen Palmer of Cambridge, eminent surgeon and lecturer, who will be on the other side until August gathering new material for her illustrated talks. Dr. Palmer ultimately arrives in Spain for travel; after she has done Provence and Avignon; visited in Paris with friends and been the house guest in London of the Honorable John Robertson, Privy Councillor to the King, and Mrs. Robertson; after she has visited again the famous cathedrals and abbeys of England and been the guest of Mrs. Mark Ashton, sister of Lord Bryce.

MISS KATHERINE WARREN'S BOSTON STAY IS, FOR THE present, ended and she is back in New York on a round of dramatic readings. Miss Warren is much interested in the presentation of "The Piper," set for April at the Repertory Theatre, and will probably come over to assist further at these performances.

BOSTONIANS WHO SAIL TOMORROW ON THE STEAMSHIP Cleveland include Frederic Wenthrop and his daughter,. Miss Dorothy Wenthrop, and Mrs. Ralph Emerson Forbes of Milton and her young daughter, Miss Pauline Forbes. Miss Edith Webster is also sailing on the Cleveland.

New Milk Rates Held Up

Operation in Massachusetts of the proposed 20 per cent. increase in milk rates on the New Haven Railroad, for the fourth time, was today suspended by the Public Utilities Commission. The new date set by the commission is June 9. Previously the rate was suspended until April 1.

DRIVERS RUSH TO PAY UP

As a result of the publicity given the impending cancellation of thousands of automobile registrations for non-payment of compulsory insurance premiums, insurance companies are doing a land-office business with delinquent policy holders.

According to Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank A. Goodwin his office has received a flood of notifications from car owners that they have settled for their insurance policies and there is no cause for revocation of registrations.

The fifteen-day period of grace provided in the compulsory insurance law is the saving factor for these dilatory motorists, Mr. Goodwin declared. While cancellations have been going on at the rate of about 100 a week, this number is expected to take a sharp drop as the result of the publicity given the drive of the insurance companies in their efforts to collect on outstanding policies.

U. S. BACKS UP DIAZ BY SELLING HIM ARMS

Washington, March 24 (A.P.)—The American government has backed up its recognition of the Diaz regime in Nicaragua by selling it arms and ammunition to maintain law and order.

Announcement of the transaction is made officially by the State Department. It said the War Department had sold the Diaz government 3,000 Lee rifles, 100 Browning machine guns and 3,000,000 rounds of ammunition. The price was $217,718, to be paid by a series of notes, the first of which will be due Jan. 31, 1929.

FRANCE TO DECIDE ABOUT ARMS PARLEY SATURDAY

Paris, March 24 (A. P.)—France's reply to President Coolidge's invitation to send an observer to the three-power naval disarmament parleys at Geneva was again postponed today by the cabinet.

Action was deferred until Saturday in the expectation that Italy would meantime reach a decision whether or not to be represented at the conference.

N. E. COUNCIL IN 2-DAY SESSION

New England Council members today gathered at the Statler Hotel for a two-day session, at which important reports will be made by committee chairmen on agriculture, power and industry in the six States.

The report on power development and future sources of power, which will be made tomorrow by President Charles L. Edgar of the Edison Electric Illuminating Company of Boston, is being eagerly awaited.

Other important reports will come from A. Lincoln Filene, chairman of the research committee; Col. Frank Knox, chairman of the committee on public relations and community organization, and Harry R. Lewis, chairman of the agricultural committee.

The research committee met at noon for a luncheon and there were to be meetings later in the day of the agricultural committee, at the Statler building, and of the executive committee at the Somerset Club.

"OCTAVE THANET," NATIVE OF BAY STATE, DYING

Davenport, Ia., March 24 (A. P.)—Miss Alice French, distinguished Iowa writer who achieved wide popularity under the pseudonym Octave Thanet, was in a serious condition here today following amputation of her right foot.

Hardening of the arteries in the foot, from which the 77-year-old woman of letters had suffered for some time, made the amputation necessary. She was born in Andover, Mass.

EXTRA TRAINS TO CARRY STUDENTS HOME

The New England railroads are completing plans for transporting thousands of students attending New England institutions who will leave on their Easter vacations tomorrow.

Practically every train out of North and South Stations tomorrow will carry extra parlor cars and sleepers, while a number of special trains will be run.

Four special trains will be placed at the disposal of Wellesley students by the Boston & Albany Railroad.

FULLER VETOES MORELY BILL

Governor Fuller today vetoed a bill which would give to the City of Chelsea authority to pay $2,000 to the family of Alexander Morely, a fireman, who, it was said, died in the performance of duty.

Governor Fuller said it was distasteful for such bills to come before him as they were special legislation and while there was a temptation to be sympathetic, yet he had a duty to the people who would have to pay the $2,000. He also said that medical evidence showed that Morely had not died by sunstroke, but had died from arterial trouble.

The HOLLYWOOD GIRL

by BEATRICE BURTON
Author of "The LOVE WRECKER"

Adventures of a Girl From New England in the Movie Colony

When she walked on the set in her bathing suit Gus MacCloud stared at her in utter amazement.

CHAPTER XXIII.

MONICA squinted at the clock on the mantelpiece. It was a very fancy clock, with two gilt cupids holding up the clock face in their podgy hands. Just the kind of clock that Monica would pick out and then never mind.

It was not going now. Its hands pointed to five o'clock.

"It's quarter past 6," Bobbie said, looking down at her wrist watch.

"Quarter past 6," Monica repeated in the slightly "Let's see, did sweet friend of Mrs. Gus MacCloud have to be here at fifteen minutes after 6? That doesn't give us much time to clean up the house, does it?"

She dashed over to the davenport and began to pick up the silk cushions on it. Then she emptied two ash trays out of the window over the fire escape.

Slick and the pale pink bedroom slippers and the dressing gown and pursued out into the kitchen to take a look at the cupboard.

Darl regret," she cried, rush ing back to Bobbie. "Just give this room a lick and a promise, and then skip over to the delicatessen on the corner and get some rye bread and a

EATS AND EATS TILL EATS ARE ALL GONE

All long distance eating records in Revere were shattered Friday when Michael De Marco, a young laundry worker, ate out a lunch cart in Broadway in a two-hour session.

On a wager made by friends after he had eaten a regular luncheon, De Marco swallowed the following menu and stopped only because the lunch cart proprietor announced he would have to cook more food.

Here is the menu
Six cups of coffee.
Large dish vegetable soup.
Plate of beans.
Boiled dinner.
Chopped ham sandwich.
Two eggs on toast.
Large portion corned beef hash.
Frankforts and baked beans.
Hamburg steak and onions.
Two orders of prunes.
Whole frosted lemon pie with cheese.
One turnover.

The luncheon he had eaten before the snack was made was one cup of coffee, chopped ham sandwich, Bismarck and three bites of lunch.

The wager was made by Walter Butler, well known boxer and Joseph Mattes, both of whom had gone to the lunch cart with De Marco for a luncheon. When De Marco passed the end of the line he had eaten $14 worth of food at a Boston lunch cart restaurant. His friends laughed and would not believe.

De Marco invited them to watch and pay for the food. They did, and he won although one of the parties objected that he dropped several crumbs on the floor.

IRISH HAVE MONOPOLY ON HEAVYWEIGHT CROWN

An Irishman is always a popular champion and should continue to hold the world's heavyweight crown of kingdom for at least another generation, in the opinion of a prominent Boston sports writer. "Gene Tunney would stay on top for the next ten years he predicts," and if Tunney loses, the next champion may be another Irishman, Jim Maloney.

Camera Has Led Way in Advance of Sport

By Jack Conway

"THE newspaper camera has played a remarkable part in the progress of athletics," remarked Mr. Boston as he stopped in at the sporting department today. "I have just been talking with Dick Sears, one of the first of the recognized news photographers," went on the veteran. "Dick has been telling me of some of his experiences during the twenty-three years he has been with the Hearst organization.

"I took my first picture," Dick told me, "when Admiral Dewey was the honor guest at a parade in Boston following the Spanish war. At the time I was working as an assistant shipper in a stereotypical shop. I borrowed a small camera from the stenographer in the place where I worked and was lucky in getting a close up of Admiral Dewey.

"Right away I wanted to become a newspaper photographer. Jim Reardon, who at the time was City Editor of the Traveler, gave me my opportunity. I later went to the Journal, and when Jim Reardon organized the staff of the Boston Evening American 23 years ago I jumped at the opportunity to join him.

"In those days I used to go to the old Walpole street grounds to take pictures of the National League club. We didn't have all the cameras and I would get the stars on cards out in the centre of the diamond and take their pictures.

"The fast lense cameras came along at about the same time as the American League. Ban Johnson permitted us to do all our shooting from the base lines. It was not long before our pictures were showing where the umpires had called plays wrong. I think the umpires knew they were being checked up by newspaper cameras and made them more careful.

Mr. Boston

"THERE were some great ball players in the early days of the American League. I think Jimmy Collins, who played third base for the old Red Sox, was the class of the lot. He was a real artist. I understand he is now a police captain in Buffalo. Guess Jimmy is getting on.

"Hans Wagner, Lajoie, Delahanty, Old Cy Young, Fred Tenney and Parent were other ball players who impressed me as great stars.

"Fred Tenney always took a great action picture, leaping in the air and spearing the ball with one hand. Fred recently took part in an old players' game. I asked him to make one of his jumping catches. He said: 'Say Dick, do you want to kill me?'

"MY camera has played a prominent part in the success of Harvard football. When Percy Haughton had his championship teams at Cambridge, I made two snap shots of every game I took at the Saturday games. I would get the pictures over to Haughton late on Saturday evenings. He would study them over the weekend and would use them for skull practice on Monday. He would say to a player: 'You had no business to do that.' See, Mr. Camera, you did that.'

"They later used movies at Harvard to get a line on the plays, but a method like mine proved as successful as the movie pictures. I coached Eddie Nevins, Tarbox Hardwick and Harry Hillebrand, three great football players the Crimson has ever turned out.

"I was taking pictures in the Stadium the day the Carlisle Indians ran all over the Harvard team. Jack Hart of Carlisle, after receiving the kick-off, carried it back to the Harvard 10-yard line. Then he circled right end, ran down the field for a touchdown. I snapped so much at the play that I forgot to shoot it.

"I was also there the day the Carlisle player kicked the ball in the water basin and ran sixty yards for a touchdown, aiding the goddess of luck.

"Bill Mathews, who is now practicing law in Boston, was the best all-around player ever turned out at Cambridge. His color barred him from the big leagues.

"JACK JOHNSON had the most perfect physique of any fighter I ever photographed. He looked like a bronze statue. Jimmy Cassis, now news editor of the American, carried my plates the day I took Jack Johnson for the first time. Jimmy was then in his teens.

"I shall never forget the first time I met Bob Fitzsimmons. He called into the American's sporting department accompanied by Tom Sharkey. He demanded to know where the sporting editor was. I was frightened to ask what he wanted to see him for. Fitz persisted in his refusal to tell me. He finally popped off that he was heavyweight champion of the world. I lit up the sporting editor before he had a chance to nail me with his famous solar plexus punch.'"

"DICK didn't tell of how near death he came when he went up to get a picture of Admiral Peary and his crew when their return from their successful Polar expedition. The New York newspapers hired the only available tug and hailed the Boston reporters and camera men. So Dick secured a small launch and braved the dangers of the open ocean in it. As he drew close to the Roosevelt, Peary's ship, the swell from it and a tug which was alongside of the Polar ship capsized the launch. Dick, cameras and all were hurled into the air and he landed on the deck of the tug. His launch went to the bottom and its pilot had a narrow escape from drowning. Dick shot his pictures and scooped the world.

"During the war, Dick was in the aerial service and did his camera shooting from over the front lines. He also shot the famous cavalry movie, 'The Life of Riley.'

"I asked Dick why he had never accepted any of the flattering offers he had received to shoot movies at Hollywood.

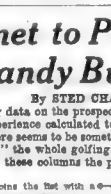
"'Women are too temperamental,' he replied. 'I like the action as I get it by following the news.'"

Ouimet to Play Hagen at Sandy Burr Again

By STED CHANDLER.

Collecting data on the prospects of the local golf clubs this year is an experience calculated to inspire a sonnet, or at least an essay. There seems to be something in the atmosphere which has "tonicked" the whole golfing family. We've passed on to the readers of these columns the prevailing optimism from several clubs.

Sandy Burr joins the list with a record of triumphs. Here is a course which bears a national rating as a championship layout—one of the first ten. It has been the scene on the past of many stirring matches. It has defied the skill of many champions.



Chandler.

It is, although perhaps not generally known, the club to which Henry Ford belongs.

It is also on the high-road to a whirl with a 4 Seed year. The memorable October First duel between Francis Ouimet and Walter Hagen, which the former surprised everyone by taking seven and five, is to be renewed sometime this Summer, the exact date yet to be set.

Ouimet and "The Haig," when they tee off once more, will find a superlative layout to test their skill. Sandy Burr has been lengthened considerably, until it now passes the 6,600 yard mark. All of the tees have been moved back and several of them have been enlarged or built over.

On the thirteenth, the tee has been raised to a height of approximately three feet in order that the tricky water hazard may be clearly seen.

A new eighteenth green has been staked out alongside the old green, which will keep the shots off the first fairway.

Sandy Burr has often been termed a "late course," but with scant justice. Last year, which was undoubtedly a late year, the fairways were rolled by April 19 and play was in order.

This year the rolling has already started and playing will commence by the first week in April, way ahead of schedule.

ONE of the most popular of all American pastimes is minding the other fellow's business. It has vogue in every walk of life and every field of endeavor, but it is especially most popular in the world of sports.

Ruth Hitting In Shape Now Owners Will Profit

Used to Be Late Starter Trained All Winter Worked Hard in Films

BABE WILL START HITTING IT WHEN BELL RINGS

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 24.—Babe Ruth, stepping to bat in one ball game, smacks out a double and two home runs. That is great news for the American League. The Babe has his eye back, is in great condition, and will start slapping baseballs in the wide open spaces [illegible].

The big crowds that he always draws when he's going will be present from the start. The fans will not have to wait a month or so this year for Mister Ruth, usually a slow starter to get going.

Nick Flatley

The Bambino checking the apple this time of the year gives a good example to other ball players who are not inclined to take physical conditioning, any too seriously.

Other years the battering Babe reached camp weighing a few tons. He was hardly ever in shape when real baseball started. He had to work himself down, and it was generally mid May before he was his baseball self.

This Winter Ruth working in the movies out on the coast, took his trainer along. The latter, Mister Armstrong, put his huge pupil over the jumps. He had him up at dawn, running three or four miles daily before breakfast.

Ruth, the actor, worked hard in the movies.

He had to do a lot of real base running.

He slid so much that all the skin was [illegible].

When he came in for lunch he had to be [illegible] could inhale any groceries. And his [illegible] strictly.

There was more film stuff, hard work this afternoon, and then an hour in the gym before dinner. Then had to go to the studio for retakes at night.

He was a tired but perfectly conditioned young man when he signed his $70,000 contract and hit the trail for Florida. Now he's ready to play his best baseball as the season draws nigh. Other athletes, who figure that a few weeks in the Spring can remove the physical softness of an easy Winter, will to consider the case of the Babe.

Millions use Rinso. Thousands write us letters like this.

"I used to buy 4 kinds of soap for my washer until my grocer advised me to try Rinso. Now I know why so many women boost it. Rinso makes a creamy suds that soaks dirt out of clothes in a jiffy—even whitens and cleanses without boiling. Saves hours of work every washday and dishwashing, too. Rinso is safe for my fine linens and silks. And it's so easy to use. As soon as I get it I put a large full package on hand to make sure I don't run short. Millions use it every washday

Millions of women will use nothing but Rinso, the granulated soap, on washday. For it always gets the clothes whiter—and saves hours of extra work.

MEDBURY SAYS---

By JOHN F. MEDBURY.

THERE'S a hotel in Chicago that has a special floor for large guests. The mattresses and springs are extra long so what a tall man can take his feet to bed with him.

THIS is a wonderful convenience. Both ends can go to sleep at the same time.

HIS feet don't have to stay awake while his head is taking a nap.

IT'S nice to find a bed where your knees don't get in your eyes.

A LANKY guy from Texas got so nervous one night that he bit himself in the ankle.

HE was afraid to go to bed after that without a muzzle.

BUT in this Chicago hotel you can put your feet under the covers and never see them again until morning.

ONE fellow said he couldn't have been more comfortable if he'd had a wooden leg.

HEfelt so good at the end of the week that he almost paid his bill.

THE tubs in this hotel are extra long, and a big man can take a bath all at once.

HE can wash north and south at the same time.

WHEN you're sitting in a tub, it's nice to have your feet with you.

A MAN lives to finish his business in one night and have Sunday to himself.

MOST who dare so short that you've got to be an acrobat to get yourself clean.

ONE fellow is so tall that his ankles haven't been wet for three years.

UNTIL this new hotel was built he used to sleep in a houseboat and let his feet hang in Lake Michigan.

HE woke up one morning and two battleships were tied to them.

BUT science is making great strides, and thanks to the Morrison, a tall man can now spend the evening with his feet.

THE MEDITATIONS OF A WIFE---BY HELEN ROWLAND

THE average man's heart is so small, these days, that a girl has to keep on a strict reducing diet in order to squeeze her way into it.

Alas, widowers don't last long! There is always some sweet sympathetic woman close at hand, to convince them that they need coddling, and can never get used to the horrors of "batching it" again.

* * *

When a love affair begins to die, it is more merciful to end it with a swift, clean, surgical stroke than to try to be "chivalrous" and run the knife in by inches.

* * *

There is not much "emotional appeal" about a girl who can stand alone, and never feels the need of a man's coat-lapel to cry on.

* * *

The "love" that most wives have to be satisfied with is what is left of a man's emotions, after he has finished expanding them on his work, his golf, his food and his "temptations."

When a girl refuses to let a man pet her, he is never disconcerted. He is merely astonished that she should be so blind to her own wonderful LUCK!

* * *

Getting married and serving on a jury are two things that every man optimistically feels that HE can always "keep out of," no matter how many other men have been caught.

There are some men who imagine that "petting" is LOVE. But then, there are some men who fancy that a sandwich and a glass of buttermilk constitute a MEAL!

A woman never makes a mistake in the love-game until she stops following her instinct and begins listening to her reason.

In every marriage there is always one "back-seat driver" who leans comfortably against the cushions and tells the nerve-wracked driver "just how to do things."

"I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and I noticed a change for the better. I continued the treatment and after using four cakes of Cuticura Soap and three boxes of Cuticura Ointment I was healed." (Signed) Mrs. J. D. Nolan, 1229 Purchase St., New Bedford, Mass., Sept. 28, 1926.

SAGE TEA TURNS GRAY HAIR DARK

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray or streaked, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold. Don't bother to prepare the mixture; you can get this famous old recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients for only 75 cents, all ready for use.

It is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color and lustre of your hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's" Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy and lustrous.

Don't hunt for apartments. Save time and trouble. Consult the Classified Ads and your problem will be solved. Classifications 25 and 27.

GRAND CANYON REAL WONDER

Twenty-seven years ago the world scarcely knew of the existence of the Grand Canyon of Arizona. This canyon, 6,000 feet deep, 12 to 20 miles broad, twists a length of 220 miles across the Northern Arizona wilderness.

Khaqui visitors then were prospectors of the old breed, disappearing for months at a time among its splinted gorges and sunken, inviting, stray cattlemen, wandering Indians, or the hard pedaling members of a bicycle club from the little frontier town of Flagstaff, 65 miles away.

When the steel of the present Santa Fe branch line to the Canyon crept northward from the cattle town of Williams, the oldtimers ridiculed the effort and expense. In the travel year ending October 1, 1926, that same branch line carried 65,501 visitors to the Canyon Rim.

Since those early days more than 1,600,000 people have seen the Canyon. For example in the new El Tovar Hotel in the Grand Canyon had guests registered from every State and Territory of the United States and from 37 foreign countries.

"TOURIST SEASON" AT DE LAND IN SWING

De Land, Fla., March 24.—De Land's "tourist season" usually means the return of many people to homes they have occupied once for many years. Of course the stranger comes, too, many of him, but increased population really starts here with homecoming visitors.

The "season" is a long one, for it starts with the opening of Stetson University and the public schools. It can then be easily deduced that the city has a season of about nine months duration. Right now the crowds still betoken midseason numbers and about this time most of the big hotels at the famous resorts are getting ready to close.

The Hotel College Arms has been comfortably crowded throughout the six months starting December 1, the gayety is at its height right now. A golf tournament, which will end during the first week in April, is drawn to a close.

The De Land Country Club golf course is crowded daily and on March 24 and 25 and a big tournament sponsored by the De Land Chamber of Commerce.

HOTEL ASSOCIATION TO PRINT RED BOOK

Negotiation has just been consummated, whereby the official Hotel Red Book, for many years the standard directory of the hotels in the United States and Canada, will be published in the interest of the American Hotel Association.

President Green's motion to take over and publish the Hotel Red Book was unanimously supported by the Council at its last meeting at Omaha as the most logical plan that could be adopted to give the Association a permanent source of income and thus permit the carrying on of the many important activities of the association.

The 1927 Red Book will be printed by the old company and will carry the insignia of the American Hotel Association, while the 1928 book will be the first to be issued entirely by the Association.

MEDITERRANEAN CRUISE OFFERS GREAT INTEREST

Venice is familiarly known as the "Queen of Lagoons." It is within Italy rising out of the blue Adriatic and presents one of the loveliest of fairy scenes. Venice is only one spot in the Italian Lake district.

This region is traversed in the day time after leaving Milan and the journey includes the beautiful Italian and Swiss Alps to Lucerne in Switzerland. These are only a few of the scenic high spots to be enjoyed on the wonderful Mediterranean Cruise, which will leave Boston on Aug. 31.

Complete information and itinerary may be obtained from Geo. H. Marstere, Inc., 248 Washington street, Boston.

HUB WOOL MEN IN RATE APPEAL

Washington, March 24 (A.P.)—The Interstate Commerce Commission was asked today by the Boston Wool Trade Association to reconsider its refusal of last January to order railroads and ship lines to make joint through rates on wool via the Panama Canal from the Pacific to the Atlantic Coast.

The Wool Trade Association declared in obtaining the shipment of wool from the Rocky Mountain territory to Boston on a single bill of lading, with uniform freight and railroad freight merged into a single rate.

As the commission refused to require the carriers to establish rates for the purpose, the wool trade petition today asked another opportunity to press its demand.

THE BOSTON AMERICAN'S PLATFORM FOR BOSTON AND NEW ENGLAND

For BOSTON: 1—Clean streets.
2—Solution of traffic and parking problems.
3—Better pay for honest public service.
4—An airport SECOND TO NONE.
5—Erection of a MUNICIPAL AUDITORIUM to compare with any in the land; in order that Boston, properly supplied with first-class hotels, may be the premier convention city of the U. S. A.

For NEW ENGLAND: 1—Weld the six States into a unit through the activities of the New England Council, thus creating a community consciousness.
2—Promote intercourse with Central and South America, encouraging New Englanders to "turn to the sea" again.
3—Keeping everlastingly at the job of telling the rest of the country all about our unique advantages as Summer and Winter Playground of the Nation.
4—Foster the prosperity of our industries through (1) greater efficiency in production and (2) the use of modern methods in merchandising.
5—Promote in every way such natural resources as forests, water powers and fisheries.
6—Assist New England agriculture to better marketing methods.

Teamwork Taught to 8,000,000 New Englanders; The Council Marked by a Spirit of Enterprise

ANIMATED by a single thought—the further development and greater prosperity of their native New England—seventy-two representative merchants, manufacturers, professional men and farmers meet in Boston tomorrow for this year's first quarterly session of the New England Council.

THIS year's first quarterly meeting—the New England Council is become an institution!

What IS the Council?

The New England Council is NEW ENGLAND IN TEAM WORK, a stimulating body, made up of twelve men from each of the Six States.

What has it DONE? What is it DOING?

Still in its "baby clothes," for the Council came into being as recently as the Autumn of 1925, the new spirit of enterprise, achievement, and co-operation which has been developed under its fostering care have been visible in such achievements as:

Increased interest in New England problems, and increased co-operation with New England interests, on the part of officers of the Federal government.

Banks and business institutions using their advertising space to express their faith in New England and New England unity.

New trains and generally improved transportation service for the better accommodation of visitors.

The greater display by retailers of goods "made in New England," and featured as such.

An army of speakers, all over New England, DAILY conveying the New England message to the business men of New England.

Cities and towns consulting with engineers as to community surveys and the making of inventories of their assets and liabilities in relation to future industrial development.

Growth in the number of communities putting on expositions for the purpose of making their own people more familiar with local products and the economic life of the community.

Bringing the farmers of the six States together to agree upon the principles and practical details of a program for the BETTER MARKETING OF NEW ENGLAND FARM PRODUCTS.

Recommendations by the Governors of two New England States in favor of publicity under State auspices.

Mayors of New England cities appointing representative committees for the assistance of local industries and the promotion of the industrial development of their communities.

At least one New York manufacturer, after attending the Second New England Conference at Hartford, in November, last, selected a New England State for the location of his newest plant.

Testimony from the markets that apples from "outside" are losing their former predominance hereabouts through the IMPROVED GRADING AND PACKING of the New England crop.

More than ONE THOUSAND leaders of New England business coming together in the annual NEW ENGLAND CONFERENCE, there to gain inspiration and confidence by contact with one another.

Union of New England organizations in support of such projects as the extension of the White Mountain National Forest.

Increase in the number of firms establishing branch offices in New England, thus showing THEIR faith in the business future of New England.

Increased interest in the possibilities for New England industries in the manufacture of "style" goods, broadcasting throughout New England of a basic system for engaging in the mass production of these goods.

Increased activity on the part of New England manufacturers in the direction of adding NEW products to their operations.

Increased use by New England business of the research facilities of New England educational institutions.

We have seen a listing of forty-one of these and similar "evidences" of the new spirit which has come upon old New England as the direct result of the labors of the New England Council; the eighteen enumerated here are submitted as perhaps the "high lighs" of that list.

It is impossible to write down in dollars and cents the value of such a work and it is well to remember that no other existing body could have undertaken it.

It was less than two years ago that the Governors of these States were asked each to name THREE men to see whether something could not be done to "stimulate" New England, to rouse her from a sort of psychological slump, a kind of mental depression. The Council of today, having brought into "the New England picture" seventy-two of the ablest men of this section, has grown from that mustard seed.

Until now, BOSTON has had to be content with READING ABOUT the Councillors and their labors. This will be their first visit, AS Councillors, to the New England capital. Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Rhode Island, Connecticut, and Worcester in our own State, have furnished the earlier meeting places.

There may have been a fear in the minds of the founders that a Boston date-line any earlier in the history of the organization would have stirred jealousy or aroused suspicion; would have raised the objection, "Too much Boston"!

Whatever the reason, the New England Council comes to us already full-blown, with an encouraging record of accomplishment. Boston can hope for no more than that tomorrow's assembly in the Hotel Statler will be as inspiring as the meetings at Worcester, Providence, Portland, Bretton Woods, Burlington and Hartford.

It was in Providence, last December, that Mr. Secretary Hoover defined the purpose and function of the movement when he said that it was creating that COMMUNITY CONSCIOUSNESS in which New England, as compared with other sections, had been lacking.

The REAL achievement of the New England Council, then, may be said to be a newly awakened New England consciousness.

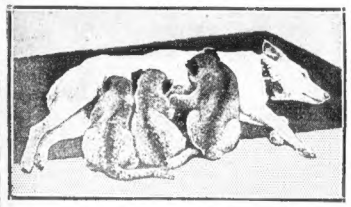
A new spirit has taken hold of us. We number 8,000,000 or more and we are learning team-work, learning how to co-operate.

We have served due and formal notice upon all whom it may concern that New England is NOT surrendering her leadership, in education, in industry, in recreational appeal and facilities, or in anything else.

And—best of all, perhaps—the Doctors Gloom have been quietly dropped overboard.

Beware Your Guests, Dog

When THEY Grow Up, YOU Keep Away



A DOG NURSING THREE LION CUBS

This sight recently interested visitors to the Zoological Garden in Berlin. A lioness was unable to nurse her three cubs. This good-natured dog undertook the task and regularly supplied nourishment to the little beasts that, by now, could and probably WOULD strike off their foster mother's head with one blow of a well-aimed paw.

This well-meaning little dog is not the first sample of unwise, dangerous nursing.

Nations glorying in the achievements of their conquerors and nursing them along have been made their slaves.

The United States has nursed and built up gigantic corporations and trusts that subsequently have proceeded to milk their benefactor, energetically and systematically.

This dog, looking at the three cunning little lion cubs, says to herself, perhaps: "Poor little things; they never would hurt anybody. I am glad to supply them with milk." How surprised she would be if she could see them full grown, the male lion able to seize a heifer in its mouth and with it jump a wide ditch.

Young ladies and gentlemen that take on foolish habits, you might also find a moral in this picture.

Many today are nursing a habit that will treat them later on as these lions would treat the nursing dog.

As for miserable victims that allow themselves to nurse the drug habit, they are nursing a serpent of the most deadly poisonous kind.

Figuring on Eclipse

By Garrett P. Serviss

A FAMOUS Wall Street man of former days—one who made and lost and made again millions—once told me that among his proudest achievements, as measured by his personal satisfaction, was the calculation of a solar eclipse.

To see the sun and the moon fall into line, and the shadow come sweeping on, at the very moment that his laborious figures had predicted, brought a thrill that the market could not match.

This memory was recalled by the following letter:

"I have a 4½-inch telescope from Brashear's. I know all the planets. I study the stars and the constellations. But what I want now is to know how to foretell the eclipses of the sun. The books I have do not explain it, and if I live long enough I will forecast an eclipse both of the moon and of the sun. Dear teacher, you taught me all these other things although you never saw me, and I hope you will explain to me this also.—M. D."

To compute an eclipse you must have some knowledge of trigonometry —not a very difficult science, but yet requiring a degree of mental application which surely would not be lacking in your case.

In an eclipse of the sun, the moon in its motion around the earth passes exactly between the earth and the sun so as to throw its shadow upon the earth. In an eclipse of the moon, it is the earth that passes over the sun, throwing its shadow upon the moon. An eclipse of the sun is the more difficult to compute because the moon is relatively so small that its shadow comes almost to a point before reaching the earth, and it is necessary to calculate just where the slender cone of this shadow will fall upon the earth's surface.

Account must be taken of the simultaneous motions of both the earth and the moon through space as well as of the earth's rotation on its axis, for these affect the motion of the shadow and the direction and speed with which it is drawn over the earth. The distance of the moon from the earth, and that of both earth and moon from the sun, at the time of the eclipse, must also be known.

Nowadays these facts are all supplied by a government publication, "The American Ephemeris and Nautical Almanac," published yearly in advance, and to be had for $1 from the superintendent of the government printing office, Washington.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

ARE you cross tonight? Growling because some little thing went wrong in the office? Complaining because the dry cleaner didn't bring your party dress back in time for the dance?

Then read this:

Dear Elsie:

Tonight I am so blue and discouraged that I feel I must tell my troubles to some one. To begin with—I was born a perfect terror. I was a baby. When I was just beginning to walk I was stricken with infantile paralysis. For a long time they thought I would not live. But no. I recovered and at times I was I never had. Today I am strong and active but entirely unable to walk, except with crutches.

I am eighteen, Elsie. I long for life as others have it. Instead of hating it that way I put in the days just because I must. In a way dad has rewarded me. I have the best parents in the world. We are not poor. I have good health. In fact, my body from my waist up is a perfect condition. Sitting down my affliction is hardly noticed.

But, Elsie, I can never know the thrill of going to "see my best girl" or enjoying youthful company.

Please do not get the impression that I am of a morose disposition, for I am not. I can be as merry as the next one if only given a chance. So tell me, Elsie, is there any hope for me of finding happiness in a life that was a mistake from the beginning?

DAVID.

David, David, dear! Here's one big girl who bathes she would put her arms around you and tell you that the girl who thinks as and how much she admires your fineness and courage.

Is there any hope for your finding happiness?

I'm not going to answer that question lightly, David. All my life has been spent in trying to escape suffering. My heart is scarred with thememory of it. I know what a desperate struggle it means to triumph over that handicap. And to me, the usual Pollyanish philosophy is only a cruel insult. How little such smug comforters know of the desperate difficulty of maimed life.

So I'm thinking long and deeply before I answer you.

There IS hope, David.

You CAN find happiness in life. You can't find it easily. None of us do, even though we have normal bodies. You won't find it all the time. None of us do that, either. And it will be harder for you to find it than for others—but WHEN YOU DO FIND IT IT WILL BE A MORE GLORIOUS HAPPINESS AND IT WILL GLORIFY ALL YOU TOUCH.

I am thinking of a young girl as I write. Her name is Norma. Like you, she was born with a beautiful body. Like you, she fell victim to infantile paralysis, and, though she had undergone many painful operations, the poor body is still helpless. She cannot even walk with crutches.

Some time in her hour of desperate, lonely brooding, she hit upon the truth that "it's greater to give than receive." Shewas doomed to be an invalid for life and invalids usually spend their time in RECEIVING. They receive sympathy, consideration, endless service. This is the bitterest pill a proud invalid has to swallow—and such deprivations often does more harm to the life than the illness itself.

My little friend didn't wait to swallow it. She didn't want to stay always on the receiving line. She wanted to GIVE. So she began GIVING. She gave wit and charm and sympathy. She had parties, as well girls have parties, and she gave every one a royal good time. She never discussed her infirmity. She never allowed herself to brood over it. She read, sang, took music and French lessons, and went in for every pretty fad that other girls went in for. Her mother was frail. As she grew older, she took over the managing of the house.

SHE LIVES IN TRIUMPH!

David, dear, you can, too.

BOSTON DAY BY DAY

FORE!

CARTER RUGGLES of Reading, a State Street broker, has just returned from a Florida trip accompanied by his golf clubs.

"Good trip, Rug?" he was asked.

"Yes, good trip."

"Swim?"

"No."

"Fish?"

"No."

"Well, why go to Florida?"

"Had some good golf," he replied. "And I just played this afternoon at Bear Hill."

Moral: Why go to Florida for golf when New England offers such excellent spring weather.

CANTERING.

With forsythia shrubs pushing forth their gay yellow blooms and lilac buds swelling to the bursting point, the BOSTON PARK DEPARTMENT bridle paths are alive with riders these fine Spring days. That horseback riding is a popular sport with Bostonians is evident these days.

MISPRONUNCIATIONS

New "game" is to listen on the radio and see what words are mispronounced. PRESIDENT COOLIDGE was "picked up" recently, and that started it. The "Happy Family" announcer over WEEI started this week by telling about receiving a letter from a 97-year-old man in Gloucester, and pronounced the name of the fishing city "Glowster," with the first syllable rhyming with "house."

"WORST GOLF PLAYER."

CHAIRMAN GUY E. TRIPP, former HINGHAM man, now directing affairs of the great Westinghouse Electric Co., boasts of being the worst golf player at his club. CHAIRMAN TRIPP is a frequent visitor to BOSTON in connection with affairs of his company.

LONGEVITY SECRET IS ADJUSTMENT

By DR. FRANK CRANE

DR. C. H. MAYO, of Rochester, one of the foremost physicians of the United States, lectured recently on How to Grow Old Gracefully. He mentioned five points.

Begin taking care of yourself when young;

Have health examinations once a year;

Avoid excesses;

Develop an avocation preferably along some line that brings you in contact with nature;

Live in communities protected by efficient public health laws.

He said that the principal danger to long life at present is our ability to gratify our desires too easily and our inability to readjust ourselves to new ways of living.

The secret of all life is adjustment. Not that animal that was the strongest lived the longest in former times, but the animal which most easily adjusted itself to the conditions around it.

Animal life has all sorts of ways of adjustment. In cold climates animals grow heavy fur. Some change their color to conform to their surroundings.

The secret of all longevity seems to be adjustment.

Proper sanitary conditions also have much to do with long life. Whereas in the Middle Ages a man lived on the average only twenty years now he lives to a much greater age.

Our gifted grandmothers were old at fifty. Now some of them at fifty are just stepping out.

ARE YOU GETTING A BIT RUSTY IN YOUR IDEAS?

Old Man, are you getting a bit rusty in your ideas?

Are you strongly set in your opinions and unwilling to listen to the new ideas of the younger generation?

If you have a boy or a girl at college, it might do you some good to have a chat and get the new view point first hand.

Find out what present day thought is, as presented in the "halls of learning" where you are sending your offspring.

You may not agree with what you hear but withhold judgment.

Don't ridicule the new ideas till you have had more time to digest them.

Ideas more logical and practical than had come to light at your time, have been evolved and are being conveyed to youth today.

Theories which seemed sound when you were a boy have been proven illogical in these intervening years.

Your boy may know more than you after his college course. His ideas may be worth listening to.

Get all the ideas you can from the youth of today.
